

Death benefit nomination fact sheet

This fact sheet provides an overview of death benefit nominations in your super account.

Log in to submit your death benefit nomination

Logging in to your account is the quickest and easiest way to submit your death benefit nomination. You can register for access and log in at www.sfg.com.au/portfolio

What is a binding death benefit nomination?

A binding beneficiary means the trustee of your super fund must pay your death benefits to the eligible nominated dependants and/or Legal Personal Representative in the proportion (%) you nominate.

There are two types of binding death benefit nominations:

- Lapsing binding: nominations are valid for three years and revert to non-binding once expired unless renewed.
- Non-lapsing binding: nominations are enduring and remain in place unless revoked or amended.

What is a non-binding death benefit nomination?

A non-binding death benefit nomination means the trustee of your super fund is not legally bound to pay your death benefit according to your nomination instructions. The trustee will take into account your nomination, but has discretion over where the benefits are paid. This means, for example, that benefits could go to an eligible dependant who is not listed on your non-binding nomination.

Who can I nominate?

For both binding and non-binding nominations, you can nominate dependants as defined under superannuation law and/or your Legal Personal Representative (see below).

Dependants

- your spouse (including de facto or same-sex partners)
- children of any age, including step-children, adopted or children from previous relationships
- someone who is financially dependent on you at the date of your death
- someone in an interdependency relationship with you (ie living with you and one or both provide the other with financial, domestic and personal support) at the date of your death.

Legal Personal Representative

- your death benefit will be paid according to your estate, ie will be distributed as part of your Will (or as per laws of intestacy if you do not have a Will).

How long does my benefit nomination last?

Non-lapsing binding nominations are enduring and remain in place unless revoked or amended.

Binding death benefit nominations are only valid for three years but can be renewed. We'll send you a reminder when it's time to renew. If you don't renew, your nomination will be treated as non-binding and we'll provide you notice in writing.

Non-binding death benefit nominations don't expire.

Can I change or cancel my death benefit nominations?

You can amend or revoke (remove) your nomination at any time by completing a new nomination form, or by logging in to your account. If you're making or replacing an existing lapsing binding beneficiary, you'll need to have two witnesses sign and date the form.

If your circumstances change (eg by marriage, birth of a child, divorce or death), you should review your beneficiaries to reflect your current situation.

How is my death benefit taxed?

Your death benefit is tax free if paid to a tax dependant as a lump sum. The definition of tax dependant is a separate definition than the dependants you can nominate and covers:

- your spouse or former spouse (including de facto or same-sex)
- a child under 18 years old
- someone in an interdependency relationship with you
- someone financially dependent on you.

If your death benefit is paid to a non-tax dependant (eg a non-dependent child over age 18), tax of 15% plus Medicare levy applies on the taxable component of your super. Additional taxes apply if your death benefit includes insurance.

Certain dependants, such as a spouse, can start a death benefit pension instead of taking a lump sum. If both the deceased and the beneficiary are under age 60, the taxable portion of the pension is taxed as income in the hands of the dependant, and they will receive a 15% rebate to reduce the tax payable on this income.

Log in to submit your death benefit nomination

Logging in to your account is the quickest and easiest way to submit your death benefit nomination.

For lapsing binding beneficiaries, you'll be directed to download and print the form, have two people witness your signature, and upload it. Once you've made a new lapsing binding nomination online, you can renew it in the future without needing witness signatures or having to submit a new paper form.

Financial advice

We recommend considering professional advice before making any nomination, as there may be estate planning, taxation and other implications to consider.
